Futron Corporation
Market Intelligence Overview

Futron's Space and Telecommunications Division is the industry leader in providing business and technology services to space-related organizations. Our world-class team of market and policy analysts, economists, and engineers bring unparalleled skills and expertise to each customer. Located in downtown Bethesda, Maryland, minutes from Washington, DC, Futron has supported almost every major space-related enterprise in the U.S. and internationally.

Futron's headquarters in Bethesda, Maryland

Summary of Capabilities

Futron's Space and Telecommunications Division specializes in researching, analyzing, and forecasting space and telecommunications markets and programs. We help our commercial customers become more competitive, and we assist our government customers in understanding and leveraging space-related technologies and capabilities.

Services
- Market Analysis and Forecasting
- Sales and Business Development Support
- Technology Assessments
- Due Diligence Support

Products
- FCCFilings.com
- Space Launch and Satellite Databases
- Global Satellite Short Course

Industry Specialties
- Satellite Services
- Satellite and Launch Vehicle Manufacturing
- Emerging Technologies

Customer Testimonials

"Your advice on searching the FCCFilings.com website for the information I needed worked just fine. Thanks again for the terriffic customer support."
-FCCFilings.com subscriber

"[I have had] the opportunity to work with several consulting firms on market research projects. I can honestly say that not one exhibited more industry knowledge, professional competence or concern for the customer than Futron Corporation."
-Manager, Commercial Satellite Operator

"On behalf of the AST, I would like to thank the Futron team for a job well done!"
-FAA Senior Analyst

"I was much impressed by the initiative and commitment that each individual, and as a team, demonstrated during what proved to be a very difficult time in the history of the program."
-Department of Defense Director